SECTOR-LEVEL ATTRIBUTION (Y CLASS)

Performance Commentary for the Quarter Ended September 30, 2026 (Attribution vs. ICE BofA 1-3 Year U.S. Corporate Index)

- The Fund underperformed the benchmark because of its long duration as interest rates rose during the period. The Fund ended the period with a duration of 2.6 years, versus 1.9 years for the benchmark, to capture the yield and roll-down from that maturity segment, rather than expressing a view toward interest rates.
- Most Fund sectors contributed negatively to performance, although additional Tier-1 bonds and asset-backed securities produced positive results because of relatively short duration and notable carry.
- Financials continued to represent the Fund's largest sector exposure, including banks, finance and insurance companies, because of their attractive quality-adjusted yield, although they were adversely affected by rising interest rates as well.
- The Fund's investment-grade corporate holdings were the largest detractor from performance because of their larger allocation while renewed Middle East tensions lifted oil prices, rekindled inflation concerns and pushed yields higher. Below-investment-grade holdings were about 10% of Fund assets at period end and posted reasonable results as their incremental yield partially offset the rise in rates.
- Geographically, about 35% of the Fund's holdings were in European issuers, 33% in U.K. issuers and 27% in U.S. issuers, with the remaining 4% in Australia, Bermuda and Canada. All currency exposures were hedged back to the U.S. dollar.

The use of fixed-income securities entails interest rate and credit risks. Derivative instruments may be highly sensitive to market factors, have less liquidity than other investments and involve the potential for losses to exceed the amount invested. Interest rate risk is the risk that debt securities will decrease in value with increases in market interest rates. Credit risk is the risk that a debt issuer will fail to make timely payment of interest or principal; if the credit rating of an issuer declines, then the price of its debt securities may also decline. Investments in high-yield securities (commonly referred to as "junk bonds"), including loans, CLOs, restricted securities and floating-rate securities, are subject to greater levels of credit, interest rate, market and liquidity risks than investment-grade securities. Investing in foreign markets may involve heightened risk due to currency fluctuations and economic and political risks. The Fund may have high portfolio turnover risk, which could increase the Fund's transaction costs and possibly have a negative impact on performance. To the extent the Fund invests more heavily in particular sectors, its performance will be sensitive to factors affecting those sectors. Financial sector companies are heavily regulated and particularly sensitive to interest rate fluctuations. To the extent the Fund invests more heavily in a particular country or geographic region, its performance will be sensitive to factors affecting that country or region. Geopolitical and other events have led to market disruptions causing adverse changes in the value of investments broadly. Changes in value may be temporary or may last for extended periods. The Fund's incorporation of environmental, social and/or governance (ESG) considerations in its investment strategy may cause it to underperform funds that do not incorporate these considerations. Please see the prospectus for a complete discussion of the Fund's risks. There can be no assurances that the investment objectives of this Fund will be met.

S&P credit ratings for long-term obligations (or issuers thereof) are AAA, AA, A, BBB, BB, B, CCC, CC, C and D in decreasing order. For example, obligations rated AAA are judged to be of the highest quality, BBB to be of medium grade, CCC are judged to be speculative and obligations rated D are in default. Obligations rated in one of the four highest categories are considered to be investment grade while all other ratings are considered non-investment grade.
